With his professional aerial photographic equipment filming at very high altitude, Director Chi Po-Lin helps us see Taiwan's stunning beauty from a vantage point never experienced before. We see the landscape of mountains, oceans, lakes, rivers, forests, rice fields, fish ponds, and urban areas, but we will also see the inevitable environmental changes, damage, and wounds caused by people and various developments. Through the film we transform into birds, soaring above Taiwan, to witness the island's beauty and sorrow together.
